Giant Oak

Giant Oak combines data and behavioral science to help business and government identify potential threats during the online search and screening process. Giant Oak is led by a team of social scientists, machine learning experts, and security professionals that provide a system known as GOST® that expertly searches the deep web to reveal and rank otherwise-hidden actions, actors, and communities. GOST's human-centered design principles apply machine learning to publicly available information enabling organizations to see a clearer picture of the people and businesses with whom they transact to support screening, vetting, investigations, and continuous evaluation tasks. For more information, visit www.giantoak.com.

Infogroup
