O'Reilly Online Learning

O'Reilly Online Learning is a platform that helps nearly every government organization and employee prepare for what's coming next in the era of constant change and IT transformation. The platform provides continuous training in over 1000 technical and business topics and allows individuals to build skills in leading technologies like cloud computing, software architecture, security, artificial intelligence, and data science to solve problems and close knowledge gaps to reach imperative career and business goals. Gain access to over 50,000 content titles of all learning formats.

Join us to learn more about:

- Content across a range of subjects from 200+ of the world's best publishers, including pre-published titles that put your team on the inside track.
- Live online training courses on leading technology topics led by industry experts and instructors from O'Reilly's network of tech innovators.
- Certification preparation for tech's most sought-after certification exams—complete with practice tests that certify your team's ready for the real thing.
- Interactive Scenarios and Sandboxes, powered by Katacoda let you explore how a new technology works within a real dev environment—so your teams are prepared when it's time to face real-world situations and problems that can affect your agency.
